

Quinta do Tedo Portugal

DOC WINES

"Tedo is a serious player now and getting more serious by the moment. The wines lately have been terrific and they seem to be getting better and better."

Mark Squire, December 2012

2009 Grande Reserva "Savendra" DOC

"Largely an old vines field blend, [this] is another terrific Grande Reserva from Tedo. Following on the heels of the wonderful 2007, it is a sexy beast with ripe fruit and beautiful structure...showing surprising restraint in this big vintage, this promises to knit together well and show not only great fruit but some finesse and character as well."

93 points– Mark Squire, The Wine Advocate #204 (December 2012)

2007 Grande Reserva "Savendra" DOC

"Mouth filling, deep and powerful, this is a gripping wine that is still unevolved. It is reeking of potential...burly, ageworthy, a bit earthy and very intense."

95 points– Mark Squire, The Wine Advocate #204 (December 2012)

2008 Reserva DOC

"Penetrating and focused, this is a very fine Reserva and a terrific value point in the lineup. It still has considerable upside potential if cellared and I would recommend holding it a couple of years for best results. It is a powerful puppy, but graceful in the mid-palate as well as quite delicious."

92 points– Mark Squire, The Wine Advocate #204 (December 2012)

2007 DOC

"Terroir driven Douro earth, black fruited, with tobacco and tar accents, in a full-bodied remarkably smooth frame. Completed by zesty acidity, brash tannins and a delicious long finish."

91 points– Roy Hersh, For the Love of Port (December 2011)

PORTS

2010 Late Bottled Vintage Port

95 points– Double Gold Medal, San Francisco International Wine Competition 2016

2003 LBV Port

"Bottled 2008; unfiltered. Dark red and very primary, the youth shows throughout. ...The finish is long and berry filled and this well made LBV is quite close in quality to the level of a Single Quinta VP."

91 points– Roy Hersh, For the Love of Port (December 2011)

2003 Vintage Port

"The 2003 Tedo is a powerful and potent Port, massively fruited, with purple berry perfume, fresh, plummy, harmonious and pure. Succulent and filled with vibrancy, the palate delivers ripe almost jammy briar patch fruit flavors, adorned with a brooding tannic backbone. The heavy-weight density is striking... ."

93 points– Roy Hersh, For the Love of Port (December 2011)

2007 Vintage Port

"Wonderfully crafted."

90-93 points– Wine Spectator Online (May 6, 2009)

2007 Single Quinta Savedra

"A fascinating nose of blackberry, grilled meat and lemon peel. Turns to black licorice. Full-bodied, rich and very powerful, with an excellent finish."

90-93 points– Wine Spectator Online (May 6, 2009)
