Finger Lakes

The Wines:

- Sparkling Riesling Pet Nat: The grapes are hand-harvested, pressed whole-cluster, and only the free run and initial light pressings are used for this and all of Nancy's sparkling wines. Ferments are spontaneous and the wine is not filtered, fined or sulfured. This Riesling ages on its lees in bottle for six to twelve months before disgorgement. Production is quite small and the initial disgorgement and release was only ~100 cases.
- Sparkling Pinot Noir Pet Nat: Like the above, the grapes are hand-harvested, pressed whole-acluster, and only the free run and initial light pressings are used for this (and all of Nancy's sparkling wines). Ferments are spontaneous and the wine is not filtered, fined or sulfured. The Pinot Noir Pet Nat sees very little if any time en tirage. Production is quite small and the initial disgorgement and release was only ~100 cases.
- Riesling Extra Brut: For this and all of Limnad's méthode champenoise wines, a neutral Champagne yeast is used to finish the fermentation to ensure dryness. This underwent four years of aging on the lees before disgorgement. As with the three wines below, dosage is 2-3 grams per liter depending on the vintage, and final SO<sub>2</sub> count is altogether minimal: around 10-15ppm or less. Production is quite small and the initial disgorgement and release was only ~100 cases.
- Blanc de Blanc Extra Brut: As with the two wines below, this Chardonnay was raised in tank or wood (it depends on the vintage) over winter to early summer, and then spent four years of aging on the lees in bottle before disgorgement. Production is quite small and the initial disgorgement and release was only ~100 cases.
- Blanc de Noir Extra Brut: Four years of aging on the lees for this Pinot Noir before disgorgement. Production is quite small and the initial disgorgement and release was only ~100 cases.
- Sparkling Rosé Extra Brut: Four years of aging on the lees before disgorgement. Production is quite small and the initial disgorgement and release was only ~100 cases.
